Executive Summary

As a global industry leader, Seagate welcomes the responsibility to also be a "Global Citizen." In partnership with employees, community members, customers, suppliers, and other stakeholders, our commitment to Global Citizenship includes support of the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights and the Ten Principles of the United Nations Global Compact within our sphere of influence. These Principles address responsibility for the environment and other matters; however, most address the international human rights and labor standards that must be upheld to ensure the well-being and dignity of each person.

We have developed policies to reinforce our commitment to uphold these human rights and labor standards. We will abide by these policies or the local law in the countries where we operate, whichever sets a higher standard. Managers are responsible for upholding these Principles and for ensuring adherence to all company policies and guidelines in their support.

Content

The following are some of Seagate's basic standards with regard to International Human Rights and Labor Standards (including the International Labor Organization (ILO) core labor conventions*):

Respectful treatment. Employees must respect and value each other and we hold everyone accountable for this. Violations, such as physical abuse and/or harassment or the threat of either, are not tolerated. All employees will be allowed access to basic liberties while on Company premises. (Refer to Harassment Free Workplace and Violence Free Workplace policies.)

We respect religious diversity and employees may be provided with reasonable accommodations for religious practices, upon request. Any requests for reasonable accommodation should be directed to Site Human Resources.

Employment based on achievements. Decisions about employees are based on achievements against job goals and/or standards and required competencies; decisions about applicants are made on qualifications against job requirements. In all employment actions, we prohibit discrimination based on age, race, color, ancestry, ethnic or national origin, physical or mental disability, medical condition, genetic information, marital status, sex (which includes pregnancy or perceived pregnancy, childbirth, breastfeeding, or related medical conditions), gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, perceived or actual religious creed or political opinion, military and veteran status, taking or requesting statutorily protected leave, taking or requesting a reasonable accommodation for a protected basis, or other basis protected by applicable law. (Refer to Equal Employment Opportunity policy.)

Free to express opinions. Every employee has a right to openly express their opinion. In fact, we welcome and encourage ideas and input, including notification of issues and concerns. (Refer to Open Door policy.)

Fair compensation. We assess performance against job requirements and consider business conditions and appropriate market comparisons to deliver compensation. We will compensate employees with wages and benefits that meet or exceed the legally required minimum without delay, and will clearly communicate to all employees their compensation earned. (Refer to Base Pay and Other Pay Components policy.)

Due process. We understand that an employee may not meet performance or conduct expectations. In such circumstances, the employee has a right to a fair process of review. Any resulting disciplinary actions will be humane. Deductions from wages as a disciplinary measure will not be permitted. (Refer to Performance Management, Open Door and Coaching and Discipline, policies.)

Reasonable limitation of working hours . The hours worked by employees should not exceed 60 hours per work week, or be in excess of the maximum hours of daily labor set by local laws in the countries in which we operate. We will also provide employees with at least one day off per every seven days. Overtime will be voluntary and comply with all applicable overtime pay requirements. No unreasonable restrictions of movement will be placed upon employees during non-work hours. (Refer to Hours of Work policy.)

Free to associate. We respect and adhere to all applicable laws concerning the right of workers to organize in labor unions and engage in collective bargaining and peaceful assembly, and Seagate will not prohibit or impede employees exercising such rights. However, we believe maintaining an open, unencumbered relationship between Seagate employees and their managers is the most effective means of addressing work environment questions and concerns.

Free to choose employment. We will ensure that the overall terms of employment are voluntary. We will not require employees to pay the Company any remuneration or withhold an employee's government-issued identification upon hire. We firmly prohibit any form of human trafficking or slavery, and will ensure no forced, bonded (including debt bondage) or indentured labor; involuntary or exploitative prison labor is used in the production of Seagate products.

Employment at age 18 or higher. We strictly prohibit child labor and will comply with all local minimum age laws and requirements and/or set a minimum employment age of 18, whichever sets the higher standard. (Refer to Recruitment at Seagate policy.)

Intern Program. We provide internship opportunities to college/polytechnic/university students, who meet our minimum employment age of 18. This program provides interns an opportunity to undergo supervised practical development and gain real-world experiential learning that compliments their education. Seagate does not offer any type of apprentice program. Additionally, Seagate does not hire student workers other than those that meet the criteria for the intern program. (Refer to Internship policy.)

For additional information, visit Seagate's Global Citizenship website.

Note: * Our labor standards in the Human Rights policy address the core ILO Labor Conventions No. 29, 87, 98, 100, 105, 111, 138 and 182.

Information We Collect, Use, Transfer and Disclose, and Why

During the course of employment or contractual relationship with one of the Seagate Companies (the "Company"), the Company collects, uses, transfers, and discloses individually identifiable information about you and your working relationship with the Company, or your spouse, domestic/civil partner or dependents for specific purposes associated with employment matters or the contractual relationship with the Company. We refer to such information as "Personal Information." We collect, use, transfer and disclose Personal Information based on one or more of the following reasons: (i) because we are required to do so by local applicable law; (ii) because such information is necessary to fulfill the employment contract and to maintain the employment relationship; (iii) because such information is of particular importance to us and we have a specific legitimate interest under law to process it; or (iv) where necessary to protect the vital interests of any person. The specific purposes for the collection, use, transfer, processing, and disclosure of Personal Information have been set out in this policy. Regarding (iii) above, we have a legitimate interest in collecting and processing Personal Information, for example: (1) to ensure that our networks and information are secure; (2) to administer and generally conduct business within the Company and across the organization; and (3) to prevent fraud. For more detail regarding the reasons and purposes for which we process Personal Information, see below and the Personal Information Table attached at the end of this Policy. Where none of these reasons apply, your decision to provide Personal Information to the Company is voluntary. However, if you choose not to provide certain Personal Information, we may not be able to accomplish some of the purposes outlined below. For example, if certain Personal Information about you cannot be provided to Seagate Technology LLC in the United States, you may be unable to participate in Seagate Technology LLC's U.S.-based employee stock purchase plan.

Purpose of Collection, Use, Disclosure, Processing, and Transfer

If we collect, use, disclose, transfer or process Personal Information based on your consent, you may withdraw your consent at any time.

We receive Personal Information from you as well as from other sources, such as:

- Seagate Employees
- Managers
- Sponsors
- Entities who employ you on Seagate's behalf
- References you provide
- Prior employers and/or schools
- Clients
- Background check providers
- Former benefits providers you provide to us

The Company may collect, use, process, disclose, and/or transfer Personal Information for the following purposes, as well as for the purposes set out in the Personal Information Table included at the end of this policy including the following, but not limited to:

- Evaluation of qualifications for an employment position
- Provision of employee benefits
- Administration and management of compensation, training, and possible future career growth
- Making good use of the individual's skills
- Communicating with the employee or the employee's emergency contact in the event of an emergency
- Administration of business, such as budgeting, manpower planning, and organizational design
- Authentication of the employee's identity when gaining access to computer system applications or company facilities
- Complying with legal obligations

The Company only collects, uses, discloses, processes, and/or transfers certain sensitive Personal Information when there is a reasonable business justification for doing so and then only as permitted by local law. For example, information revealing religious beliefs will be collected only if necessary to satisfy government requests or regulations. Information revealing union membership will be collected as necessary for discharging contractual responsibilities with unions.

Information About Dependents

If you provide Seagate with Personal Information about members of your family and/or other dependents ("Dependents") for the purposes set forth in the Policy, it is your responsibility to inform them of their rights with respect to the content of this Policy. You are also responsible for obtaining any required consent of these individuals, and ensuring that you have the right to provide their information to the Company.

Transfer and Joint Use of Personal Information

Due to the global nature of our operations, the Company discloses and transfers Personal Information throughout the Seagate Companies to fulfill the purposes described in this Policy, including the Personal Information Table included at the end of this policy. Transfers of Personal Information may be to Company locations (including to countries other than where employees are based and outside the European Economic Area) such as the United States, that have not been determined by the European Commission or similar authorities to have a similar data protection regime as may be found in the country where the employees are based. Some of these countries are recognized by the European Commission as providing an adequate level of protection according to EEA standards (the full list of these countries is available here). With regard to transfers from the EEA to other countries, we have put in place adequate measures, such as standard contractual clauses adopted by the European Commission, to protect your information. Employees in the EEA may obtain a copy of these measures by contacting data.protection.officer@seagate.com.

For a list of the Seagate Companies that jointly process and use Personal Information (and their locations), please click here to view our current corporate organization chart.

Access to, processing and use of Personal Information within the Seagate Companies will be limited to those individuals who need such access for the purposes listed in the Policy and/or where required by law and will include your managers and their designees, personnel in HR, IT, Payroll, Legal and internal audit functions. All personnel within the Seagate Companies will generally have access to business contact information and employee directory information such as name, position, photograph, workplace telephone numbers, workplace addresses, GID, employment status, and workplace email addresses or other Personal Information you provide with the understanding the information will be publicly available. Other job information may also be created on behalf of employees, including IP address.

From time to time, the Company may need to make Personal Information available to other external, unaffiliated third parties, such as:

- legal and regulatory authorities
- accountants and auditors
- lawyers and other outside professional advisors
- companies that provide products and services to the Seagate Companies, such as
 - payroll
 - pension scheme
 - insurance or medical benefits providers
 - stock plan administrators
- financial institutions in which the employee's pay is deposited or to which the employee is applying for credit if disclosure is requested in writing (otherwise only dates of employment and last position are given)
- potential future employers if disclosure is requested in writing by the employee
- human resources services
- performance management
- Information Technology systems suppliers and support
- other third parties engaged to assist the Seagate Companies in carrying out business activities

Some of the third-party recipients of these disclosures will be located in countries outside of the jurisdiction where the employee works, including the United States or any other country in which we or they have operations. Please refer to the section on Transfer and Joint Use of Personal Information above in this regard. If Seagate transfers or discloses Personal Information to third-party service providers, Seagate will exercise appropriate due diligence in the selection of such recipients and will require that such service providers maintain adequate technical and organizational security measures to protect the Personal Information, and process the Personal Information only as instructed by Seagate Companies and in compliance with applicable law.

Personal Information can also be disclosed, where permitted by applicable law, in connection with a corporate restructuring, sale, or assignment of assets, merger, divestiture, or other changes of control or financial status of any of the Seagate Companies.

Personnel Files

Human Resources will maintain official personnel files for active and inactive employees online and/or in hard copy at the Seagate Companies regional HR Central locations or, as required by law, at site HR locations. Aged inactive files will be maintained subject to record retention requirements.

Items maintained in personnel files may vary by country. See the Associated Local Policies section for a list of documents maintained in personnel files specific to the country where an employee works.

For privacy and security considerations, supervisors and managers are discouraged from keeping personnel documentation and files.

Collection of Personal Information

Personal Information and other employee information collected is held as follows:

1. On servers accessible only to those who need such access for the purposes listed in the Policy and/or where required by law
2. When needed, hard copy documentation is kept at regional HR Central offices – except for some countries where hard copy documentation must be kept onsite (for current and recently terminated employees)
3. By Human Resources Talent Acquisition (for applicants who are being considered for employment or placement)
4. At secured repositories (for aged terminated employee hard copy personnel files)
5. By third parties for the purposes set forth in the Policy, subject to applicable law.

Request to View/Access Personnel Files or Documents in Personnel Files

All requests by employees, people-managers, HR Business Partners or other site HR and Legal staff to view personnel files or personnel file documents will be met only when a valid "need to know" is demonstrated to Human Resources or as required by law. Personnel files or personnel file documents must not be moved without the express permission of a Human Resources representative. Human Resources will track possession of hard copy personnel files or documents and their contents to ensure that security and confidentiality are maintained. Soft copies of documents provided to the requestor must be destroyed when no longer in use.

To ensure information integrity, the Seagate Companies will respond to employee requests consistent with applicable law: for example, requests to access, correct, suppress or delete their Personal Information; requests that the Seagate Companies cease using the employee's Personal Information as permitted by applicable law; or requests for a copy of the employee's Personal Information. An active employee may request to review their personnel file or documents by contacting the appropriate regional HR Central office or site HR. See the Associated Local Policies section for country-specific submission procedures.

Upon the approval of the request, an HR Central representative will provide the requester with emailed imaged copies of requested documents not already available via self-service access.

If the requestor finds inaccurate information in the file or document, the requestor may correct the information either through HR Management System (HRMS) or contacting the regional HR Central office. Documents and files may not be altered or removed, except as may be required by applicable laws or regulations. The Seagate Companies will comply with all applicable laws and regulations regarding requests for viewing or copying Personnel Records.

For additional information about data protection measures applicable to other Seagate Companies in specific locations, refer to the Country Addendum for this policy.

Release Employee Information to Third Parties

In order to ensure that official and factual information is provided in alignment with data privacy guidelines, and to avoid the potential personal and corporate risks that could result from inadvertently providing misleading information, only those authorized in, or by Human Resources may respond to requests for employment verification or other employee or former employee information. This includes requests from any internal employees of Seagate Companies or external third-party organizations (including those from governmental agencies). Under no circumstances may employees, including supervisors and managers, individually disclose employment or personal information about current or former employees of Seagate Companies. Should this occur, disciplinary action may be taken, up to and including termination.

Examples of information that may be requested include, but are not limited to:

- Financial information
- Medical information
- Performance records
- Eligibility for rehire
- Any other Personal Information
- Hire and/or termination dates
- Employment references
- Employment verification

Information may be disclosed to the following to comply with legal requirements:

- Governmental bodies/statutory agencies (as required by law for tax, employment reporting and other purposes)
- Courts and law enforcement agencies with enforceable subpoenas, court orders and/or rights of inspection
- Legal counsel engaged in defending Seagate Companies' interests

Under certain circumstances, information may also be disclosed to the following:

- Third parties who are acting as agents of the Seagate Companies, such as payroll outsource companies
- Financial institutions in which the employee's pay is deposited or to which the employee is applying for credit
- Benefits vendors who are providing benefits services to the employees

All such requests should be forwarded to the appropriate regional HR Central office for response. Employees may make employment verification requests via the HR Management System (HRMS).

Seagate Companies generally do not provide employment references. Managers who receive such requests for employment references must forward them to HR Central for appropriate response (see "Release of Employee Information to Third Parties" guidelines above): upon receipt of a request for an employment reference for a current or former employee, HR Central will only divulge the individual's date of hire, date of termination (if applicable) and the current position held for current employee or last position held for former employees.

Seagate Companies will release certain payroll information only with express, written authorization of the present or former employee or as required by law. Information regarding the employee's overall performance or eligibility for re-hire will not be given out to any external parties under any circumstances, except as required by law.

Retention for Employee Records and Information

Employee records will be maintained as described in Policy and as required by law. Job applicant records will be maintained and kept no longer than is necessary to carry out the purposes described in Policy or as required by law. The criteria used to determine our retention periods are:

- The duration of your employment;
- As long as we have an ongoing relationship with you or your Dependents;
- As required by a legal obligation to which we are subject; and
- As advisable in light of our legal position (such as in regard to applicable statutes of limitations, litigation, or regulatory investigations).

Inactive records will be archived and retained as long as required by law. The responsibility for archived records and their destruction rests with Seagate's Governance and Records Retention organization.

Updating Personal Information

You are obligated to keep your Personal Information up to date and to inform the Company of any significant changes to your Personal Information using the HR Management System (HRMS) self-service application. The application is used to change/update employee personal information such as address, contact telephone number, emergency contact details, and other Personal Information.

The Company cannot be held liable for any loss or breach of privacy due to inaccurate and/or incorrect information that is provided to the Company such as out-of-date home address, marital status, Dependent information, and bank information.

Security

The Company will take reasonable physical, legal, organizational, and technical measures to protect Personal Information consistent with applicable privacy and data security laws. Any employee, who becomes aware of unauthorized access or disclosure of personal information as defined in this policy, should report the disclosure immediately to the Seagate Ethics Helpline for appropriate assessment and response. From within the U.S., the Seagate Ethics Helpline can be reached at 800-968-4925; from outside the United States, use AT&T Direct Access Numbers to establish a US connection and then dial 1-800-968-4925. This phone number is available 24 hours a day / 7 days a week. Staff at the Ethics Hotline will advise Human Resources.

Mass storage of hard copy personnel records must be maintained in a manner that includes a minimum of two layers of locking physical security at any time the responsible HR personnel are not on site (e.g. nights, company holidays, etc.) and at least one layer of locking security at all other times. Adequate protection consistent with site facility needs and requirements shall be provided against pests and/or fire.

Employee Obligations

You must follow the Company's policies and procedures for the collection, processing, maintenance, use, disclosure and transfer of Personal Information about other individuals (including, for example, other employees, agents, distributors, suppliers, customers, or website visitors) to which you have access in the course of your relationship with the Company. In particular, you must keep such Personal Information confidential and not access, disclose, collect, maintain, use or transfer any such Personal Information for any purpose other than as authorized in connection with and to the extent necessary to perform your job function with the Company.

These confidentiality obligations continue to exist after termination of your relationship with the Company. Violation of these obligations may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment, and appropriate action under applicable law, as well as penal sanctions.

 Last Annual Review Date: 15-NOV-2019

Previous Revision Date: 06-MAR-2020
 Policy Effective Date: 03-OCT-2005

Content

In this policy addendum ("addendum"), we, Seagate Technology International, Seagate Technology LLC, Seagate US LLC, and all other Seagate subsidiaries, affiliates, or branches ("Seagate Companies", "we", or "us") provide information about how we collect, use, disclose and transfer domestically and internationally personal data including sensitive data (i.e. health data) about you, current and former employees, applicants for employment, and agency temporary employees in relation to the medical-related services provided in our Malaysia locations.

Information We Collect, Use, Disclose and Transfer

In order to provide you with our services, we collect individually identifiable information about you, which includes but not limited to, your full name, birth date, gender, address, phone number, e-mail address. We also collect your sensitive information, in particular, your physical or mental health data for purposes associated with medical-related services and employment matters (if applicable). We receive your Personal Information from you as well as from other sources, who are Seagate employees, managers, sponsors, entities who employ you on Seagate's behalf, references you provide, prior employers and/or schools, clients, background check providers, former benefits providers you provide to us and health care providers and related personnel.

If you provide us with Personal Information about a third party (such as your dependent) for the purposes set forth in this addendum, it is your responsibility to inform them of the contents with respect to this addendum. You are also responsible for obtaining any required consent of the third party where applicable, and ensure that you have the right to provide their information to us.

Purposes for the Collection, Use, Disclose and Transfer

We collect, use, disclose and transfer domestically and internationally your Personal Information to the extent necessary to achieve the purposes, which includes but not limited to, purposes in relation: (i) to the administration and performance of medical-related services and relevant support for such services; (ii) to prevent and protect your vital interest or others vital interest; (iii) to ensure and protect your health and safety; (iv) to respond to emergency circumstances; (v) to understand you and your needs; (vi) to contact you for responding to your inquiries or to safeguard your interest or to provide you with information about our services; (vii) to contact and communicate with third parties in relation to the relevant services; (viii) to comply with our regulatory, legal and ethical obligations; and (ix) to conduct our medical-related services for employment matters or administration of business travel (if applicable) (collectively "Purposes").

Your decision to provide Personal Information to the Company is, in certain instances, voluntary. However, if you choose not to provide certain Personal Information, we may not be able to accomplish some of the purposes outlined above. For example, if certain Personal Information about you cannot be provided to us, we may not be able to provide the services in connection with the Purposes.

06-8008 Harassment Free Workplace

Policy Number:	06-8008
Applies To:	All
Policy Owner:	Scott Sill
Current Revision Date:	09-JAN-2019
Previous Revision Date:	03-MAY-2018
Last Annual Review Date:	15-NOV-2019
Policy Effective Date:	01-APR-2002
Accessible By:	All Employees

Executive Summary

It is the goal of Seagate to have a work environment free from harassment. The Company will not tolerate harassment by or against any employee, supervisor, manager, or third party, including contractors, agency temporaries, interns, vendors, volunteers, job applicants, visitors, or customers, and is committed to effectively responding in the event incidents of harassment do occur.

Harassment is prohibited on the basis of: age, race, color, ancestry, ethnic or national origin, perceived or actual physical or mental disability, medical condition, genetic information, marital status, caregiver status, sex (which includes pregnancy or perceived pregnancy, childbirth, breastfeeding, or related medical conditions), gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, perceived or actual religious creed or political opinion, military and veteran status, arrest or conviction record, credit history, alienage or citizenship status, unemployment status, status as a victim of domestic violence, stalking, and sex offenses, taking or requesting statutorily protected leave, taking or requesting a reasonable accommodation for a protected basis, or other characteristics protected by applicable law (collectively, "Protected Characteristics").

Definitions of Harassment

Harassment is verbal or physical conduct that denigrates or shows hostility or aversion toward an individual because of any Protected Characteristic. Examples of unacceptable conduct are described below and may include any unwelcome, repeated or unsolicited verbal, written, physical, visual or sexual contact or behaviors, which are offensive, abusive, intimidating, or demeaning, or which interfere with job performance by creating a hostile working environment. Prohibited harassment may consist of, but is not limited to, the following:

- Verbal conduct, such as derogatory comments, jokes, or slurs related to a protected characteristic
- Nonverbal behaviors such as glares, threatening body motions or hand gestures perceived to be threatening or harassing in nature and related to a protected characteristic.
- Physical conduct, such as impeding or blocking an individual's movement, assault, or threatening, intimidating, or engaging in hostile acts related to a protected characteristic
- Visual conduct, such as derogatory or offensive photographs, posters, cards, cartoons, graffiti, drawings or gestures, or any other written or graphic material that denigrates or shows hostility or aversion toward an individual because of a protected characteristic, placed on walls, bulletin boards, social media, or elsewhere on the employer's premises or circulated in the workplace.
- Victimization or retaliatory actions taken against an individual for reporting or threatening to report harassment.
- Intentional exclusion or alienation from work-related activities that precludes an individual from effectively performing the functions of their job.

Sexual Harassment

Harassment based on sex is a form of gender discrimination and is prohibited by Seagate policy. It is also prohibited by applicable laws within those countries where Seagate does business; for example, within the United States harassment is prohibited by federal, state and certain local laws. Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical behavior of a sexual nature or based on a person's gender. Conduct may be considered sexually harassing even if it is not motivated by sexual desire. Sexual harassment is prohibited by the Company and is a form of employee misconduct whether or not it is motivated by sexual desire. Sexual harassment may include a range of subtle and not so subtle behaviors and may involve individuals of the same or different genders.

Depending on the circumstances, sexual harassment may include, but is not limited to:

- Threats and demands that an employee submit to sexual requests in order to keep their job, or to avoid some other loss, as well as offers of job benefits in return for sexual favors;
- Explicit sexual propositions, unwanted sexual advances or requests for sexual favors; sexual jokes and innuendos; verbal abuse of a sexual nature;
- Commentary about an individual's body, sexual prowess, or sexual deficiencies;
- Leering or catcalls;
- Physical contact such as unwelcome touching, hugging, pinching, patting, kissing, grabbing, intentionally brushing against another person's body, rape, sexual battery, molestation or attempts to commit these acts;
- Insulting or obscene comments or gestures;
- Display or circulation in the workplace of sexually suggestive objects or pictures (including through email, social media, on cell phones, bulletin boards, etc.);
- Making sexist remarks or derogatory comments or taking hostile actions against an individual because of that individual's gender, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression and/or the status of being transgender.

Bullying and Abusive Conduct

In addition to prohibiting harassment, Seagate also prohibits abusive conduct in the workplace. Under this policy, "abusive conduct" or "bullying" is conduct undertaken with malice that a reasonable person would find hostile or offensive and that is not related to Seagate's legitimate business interests including employee performance standards. Although bullying may not rise to harassment under the law, it has no place at work and has a detrimental effect not only on the victim of the bullying but on others in the workplace as well due to a potential reduction in productivity and decline in morale.

The proper performance of duties by supervisors or managers or the appropriate exercise of responsibility associated with their position such as assignment of work, coaching, performance management, discipline, and other supervisory/leadership functions does not constitute harassment or unlawful discrimination.

Complaint Procedure | Retaliation is Prohibited | Responsive Action | Policy Review and Compliance | Country Addendums to Global Procedures

All employees, supervisors, managers, and third parties have responsibility for respecting others in the workplace, and in any environment in which a work relationship exists. This may be on or offsite, before, during or after work hours, or during business travel. Calls, texts, emails and social media usage by employees and others can constitute prohibited workplace harassment, even if they occur away from the workplace premises, on personal devices or during non-work hours. Harassment can be intentional or unintentional; however, it is the responsibility of each individual to be aware of the impact their conduct may have on others. The perception of a complainant regarding any behavior believed to constitute harassment will be taken into account. Harassment is always unacceptable, whether intentional or not, and all reported cases will be investigated.

Complaint Procedure

Anyone who believes they have experienced or witnessed any conduct prohibited by this policy should immediately notify their supervisor, manager, or Human Resources, orally or in writing, so that any concerns can be investigated and addressed appropriately. Individuals can also contact HR Central or the Seagate Ethics Helpline. Seagate encourages all employees to report any incidents of bullying or harassment forbidden by this policy immediately in order for complaints to be quickly and fairly resolved even if they were not the target of the conduct. Complaints may also be directly reported to the VP, HR Business Partners.

Individuals should not feel obligated to raise their complaints with a supervisor or manager before bringing the matter to the attention of Human Resources. After making an initial complaint, the individual should then submit to Human Resources the complaint, utilizing the Harassment/Workplace Violence Complaint Form, explaining the details of the incident(s), the names of those involved, and the names of any witnesses.

The availability of this complaint procedure does not preclude individuals who believe they are being subjected to prohibited conduct from promptly advising the offender that their behavior is unwelcome and requesting that it be discontinued. Supervisors or Managers who receive a complaint of misconduct from any individual must immediately bring the complaint to the attention of Human Resources so that the Company can try to resolve the claim internally. Any Supervisor or Manager who knowingly allows harassment or other misconduct prohibited by this policy to continue shall be subject to discipline.

Individuals in the United States also may seek assistance in other available forums, as explained in the United States Addendum. Retaliation Is Prohibited

No one will suffer reprisals or retaliation of any kind for reporting any incidents of bullying or harassment, making a good faith complaint of bullying or harassment, for testifying or assisting in any legal proceeding regarding harassment or discrimination or participating in any investigation. Failing to cooperate or deliberately providing false information during an investigation is grounds for disciplinary action. Individuals may raise their concerns or questions regarding this policy and any allegations of bullying or harassment without fear of reprisal, retaliation, or discrimination. Prohibited retaliation includes, but is not limited to demotion, suspension, failure to hire or consider for hire, failure to give equal consideration in making employment decisions, failure to promote, failure to make impartial recommendations, adversely affecting working conditions, or otherwise denying any employment benefit to an individual. Retaliation is unlawful as well as a serious violation of this policy, and, like harassment itself, may subject the individual who engages in retaliation to disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment.

Responsive Action

Seagate will promptly and thoroughly investigate all allegations of bullying or harassment by impartial and qualified personnel to ensure a timely and fair response. The investigation will be commenced as soon as practicable under the circumstances and may include review of relevant documents, individual interviews with the parties involved and, where necessary, with individuals who may have observed the alleged conduct or may have other relevant knowledge. All individuals are expected to cooperate in the investigation process to the fullest extent. While the investigation is ongoing, Seagate may take interim actions, as appropriate. Confidentiality will be maintained throughout the investigation process to an extent consistent with appropriate investigation, possible corrective action, and applicable law. The Company will take reasonable measures to support the timely closure of an investigation. The conclusions or completion of the investigation will be communicated to the individual who reported the complaint and the individual(s) about whom the complaint was made as soon as practical.

At the conclusion of an investigation, if Seagate reasonably determines an individual has violated this policy based on the evidence collected, the Company will take all appropriate action to remedy the problem and prevent its recurrence, and will impose discipline as appropriate up to and including termination of employment. The severity of the disciplinary action will be based upon the circumstances of the breach of policy (Refer to Coaching and Discipline policy).

Definition of Sexual Harassment | Forms of Sexual Harassment | Duty of Supervisory Personnel | Sexual Harassment Complaint Procedure

Sexual Harassment Complaint Procedures Process Flow

Seagate recognizes that sexual harassment is a form of unlawful harassment. (Refer to global Harassment policy.) Such conduct will not be condoned or tolerated. All employees will be expected to comply with this policy and take appropriate measures to ensure that such conduct does not occur. Appropriate disciplinary action, including dismissal, will be taken against any employee who violates this policy.

The following procedure provides guidelines for handling sexual harassment complaints. Any employee with a complaint of sexual harassment should follow the complaint procedure stated here in order to obtain assistance. All complaints will be investigated and resolved promptly.

Definition of Sexual Harassment

Sexual harassment is defined as any unwanted conduct of a sexual nature that is offensive to the recipient:

- that might, on reasonable grounds, be perceived by the recipient as placing a condition of a sexual nature on their employment;
- that might, on reasonable grounds, be perceived by the recipient as an offence or humiliation, or a threat to their well-being, but has no direct link to their employment.

Sexual harassment does not refer to behavior of a socially acceptable nature. It refers to behavior that is unwanted and unsolicited, that is personally offensive, and that fails to respect the rights of others.

Within the context of this policy, sexual harassment also includes any employment-related sexual harassment occurring outside the workplace as a result of employment responsibility or the employment relationship.

Forms of Sexual Harassment

The following are examples (not exhaustive) of inappropriate behavior covered by this policy:

- Physical conduct of a sexual nature: unwanted physical contact, including unnecessary touching, patting or pinching or brushing against another employee's body, assault, coercing sexual favors.
- Verbal conduct of a sexual nature: unwelcome sexual advances, proposition or pressure for sexual activity, continued suggestions for sexual activity outside the workplace after it has been made clear that such suggestions are unwelcome, offensive flirtations, suggestive remarks, innuendoes or lewd comments.
- Non-verbal conduct of a sexual nature: the display of pornographic or sexually suggestive pictures, object or written materials, leering, whistling, or making sexually suggestive gestures.
- Sex-based conduct: conduct that denigrates or ridicules or is intimidatory or physically abusive of an employee because of their sex, such as derogatory or degrading abuse or insults which are gender related and offensive comments about appearance or dress.
- Psychological conduct of sexual nature: repeated unwanted social invitations relentless proposals for dates or physical intimacy.

Duty of Supervisory Personnel

All supervisory personnel are responsible for reporting to the appropriate authorities any sexual harassment or intimidation of which they are aware by following the complaint procedure. Failure to do so will be considered a failure to fulfill all the responsibilities of the supervisory position.

No supervisory personnel shall threaten or insinuate, either explicitly or implicitly, that an employee's rejection of sexual advances will be used as a basis for an employment decision affecting that employee. Such conduct by the supervisor or manager will be treated as an offence.

Sexual Harassment Complaint Procedure

Sexual Harassment Complaint Procedures Process Flow

An employee who believes that they have been the subject of sexual harassment should report the alleged act to their supervisor or Human Resources representatives or in-house clinic nurses or use the Harassment Complaint Form. All complaints will be handled in a timely and confidential manner.

Seagate will proceed to investigate the complaint and take appropriate action to resolve the harassment immediately and prevent its recurrence. In such circumstances, if relocation proves necessary, every effort will be made to relocate the harasser and not the victim.

Employees shall be protected from intimidation, victimization or discrimination for filing a complaint or assisting in an investigation. Retaliating against an employee for complaining about sexual harassment is a disciplinary offense.

Any employee who is found responsible for harassment will be subject to appropriate disciplinary action up to and including dismissal in accordance with the Coaching and Discipline policy
